Chief's Corner

I am proud to recognize Temple University Police Lieutenant Mark Craney on completing Northwestern University's School of Police Staff & Command program following five months of intensive coursework. Programs like this are an important part of professional growth. Lieutenant Craney's commitment to strengthening his leadership skills, learning from experienced law enforcement professionals, and gaining new perspectives reflects the kind of continued development we value at Temple Police and Temple Public Safety. We are proud of Lieutenant Craney for taking on this challenge and investing in his growth as a leader. I look forward to seeing him bring what he learned back to our department and put these new skills and perspectives into practice. Congratulations, Lieutenant Craney, on this accomplishment, and thank you to Northwestern University, the instructors, and his classmates for making this such a valuable experience.

Officer Dolores Honored

Temple University Police Officer Dolores Bowers was honored as a Phillies Hometown Hero during First Responders Night at Citizens Bank Park, and members of TUPD came out in force to celebrate her. Temple University Police officers, dispatchers, security officers and administrators filled the stands to cheer Officer Dolores on and show their support for one of our own. A U.S. Marine Corps veteran and former Phillies ballgirl, Dolores represents Temple University and the TUPD community with tremendous pride and dedication. Thank you to everyone who came out to celebrate Dolores and make the night so special. Your support is what makes the Temple Public Safety community so strong. And to make an already special night even better, the Phillies came away with a win! Congratulations, Ofc. Dolores, and thank you for all you do for Temple.

TUDPS Supports Journalism

Temple University Department of Public Safety is proud to work alongside our incredible student-journalists at The Temple News. They're taking an in-depth look at the new contract, which provides Temple Police Officers the opportunity to earn up to $100,000 after five years of service. We're grateful for our students' work in telling important stories about the Temple and North Philadelphia communities!

Protect Your Vehicle's Key Fob

Temple University Public Safety is offering Faraday pouches to students living off campus as an added tool to help protect their vehicles from key-fob signal theft. Faraday pouches are designed to block radio signals emitted by electronic key fobs when the fob is stored inside. Criminals can use devices that capture and amplify those signals in an attempt to unlock and steal vehicles. "Taking simple steps to protect your vehicle can make a difference," said Temple Police Captain Enoch McCoy. "We want to make sure our students have access to tools and information that can help them keep their vehicles and belongings safe." Students living off campus can pick up a Faraday pouch at Temple Public Safety locations at 1101 W. Montgomery Ave. or 1801 N. 11th St. Students must present a valid Temple ID (TUid) and proof of vehicle ownership to receive a pouch. Public Safety also encourages students to take additional precautions, including locking vehicle doors, removing valuables from sight and parking in well-lit areas whenever possible. The Faraday pouches are being provided as part of Temple Public Safety's ongoing efforts to promote vehicle and personal safety across the university community.

Public Safety Attended Open House

Temple University Public Safety had a great time meeting prospective students and their families at a recent Open House! Our team was happy to share about the many ways we're here to support the Temple community.
